Letter from Fanquier. [Correspondence of the ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE.]

MARSHALL, April S .- After a winter of unusual mildness and a mouth or so of weather allowing all kinds of farm and garden work to be carried on, we had on Saturday last a pelting snow storm. Indeed, from 8 o'clock during the night a true easterla gale prevailed. The farmers stand annoyed and now, perhaps; may have to feed stock cattle-for which the pastures were almost ready under late genial showers of rain and sunshine—for a month longer.

Oats have been sown and preparation for corn and gardening was never at this season farther advanced.

It is refreshing to know of our neighbor's good fortune. Trenton B Whiting, e-q, the brother of the late Geo, B. Whiting, so well known in Washington city in days lang syne, writes thus from Quincy, Plumas county, California, through a sister: "We have had the most delightful winter I ever saw, scarcely any snow. We hailed rain a few days ago with joy as we had had none since December. As a consequence I have been happily exempt from rheumatism. We have an excellent Chinaman who takes delight in the care of a pig which he will not be without."

We are recalled from our digression by the recollection of a tramp in our midst the other day. He was a graduate, doubtless, of his class, wore a white necktie and had a valise well filled, and craved money sufficient to carry him back to the "old country." He had the names of dupes without number recorded in his little note book.

On the return of the March term of our County Court a few delinquent debtors may have been made to wince, though, as a general thing, our people were never more pros-perous. New dwellings are being built and old ones repaired. The arms in Fauquier are cultivated by the most approved methods; wire, plank and stone fences supersede the old-time rail enclosures; costly barns have been built and every form of farming implements and machinery bave been intro duced, and still in Virginia the great need is a population tens of thousands in excess of what we have.

Our public schools will shortly be closed.
Of course these flourish, for they are supported by the taxpayers. Next Friday the patrons of the Marshall school are invited to an entertainment. We are glad to add that the estimable wife of Mr. A. S. Furcron, of Belmont Classical School, near The Plains, has so far recovered her health as to be able to return to her home.

Shortly, of course, when the summer comes, our churches will again be filled and we shall have the neighborhood filled with visitors, boarders, etc.

The Madstone.

There is no superstition older, more extensive, and of greater vitality than the belief in the madstone. It goes back to the most ancient times. For ages it has continued in China and the East Indies, and Pliny speaks of the ability of the petrifaction called ammonis cornu, and now known as ammonite, to extract the virus from wounds inflicted by mad dogs and venomous reptiles. This stone is the fossil of an extinct mollusk; and one brought from Bombay to Richmond many years ago was believed at the time to have cured sev eral cases of hydrophobia. But the mad-stone at present in use is described as a formation found in the bladders of deer. At least such a specimen was obtained by the Geological Survey in North Carolina five or six years ago. It came from the paunch of a white spotted deer, and was said to have cured a case of hydrophobia and one of rattlesnake bite, these cures being sub-stantiated by affidavits. The madstone was more recently used with success at Terre Haute in Indiana. As it is a porous stone it operates, if it operates at all, by absorp tion, but in that respect it has no more curative power than a common sponge. Any porous substance applied to a wound would act in the same way. It is a question, too, whether the disease itself is not imaginary quite as much as real, and for that reason is especially adapted for the use of super-stitious means of cure, madstones, incantations, charms, and faith cures. Few physicians allege that they have seen a genuine case of hydrophobia in man, and Dr. Spitzka goes so far as to say that real rabbies, transmissible from dog to man by a bite of the dog only, has not yet been de-monstrated. In the great majority of case. at least, it is a purely imaginary disease, and in others blood poisoning or lockjaw may furnish the explanation. But people will answer that in their own experience they have known of rables; of men, women and children dying in horrible tortures because of the bites of mad dogs. To these the physicians answer that this very terror may provoke nervous maladies, which, among their manifold forms, will take on the appearance of hydrophobia. The manifestations under hysteria are often to the last degree startling and horrifying, and there is no doubt that the imagination is capable of creating what seems to be a case of rabies, with all the frightful symptoms attributed to i . Thus it comes to pass that finally the imagination brings on what seems to be the tained on application to WM. M. REARDON, Secretary expected disease. The sufferer, as Dr. Spitz-ka, says, dies from fright.

That is the true explanation of the great ASHLEY BROMIDE OF ARSENIC WATER.

[sep25] — Inat is the true explanation of the great majority of what are called cases of hydrophobia; and, of coorse, imaginary cures may avail in imaginary diseases. The madstone cures because its curative power is believed in. But the true remedial agent is sp4.

not the stone ammonite or the secretion of the deer. It is the faith alone. Very like ly such cures as are accordited to Pasteur's method of inoculation are also due to the wonder working power of the human imagination .- N. Y. Sun.

or children, weakness arising from various abuses. As a blood purifier it has no equal; it eradicates from the blood, through the kidnevs, all uric acid and other poisons, leaving the skin smooth and free from all eruptions.
